H029150 PEOPLE v. FLORES

The judgment is reversed. The trial court is directed to conduct a new hearing on defendant's motion to suppress as to the 1996 incident based on the parties' existing motion papers, the existing testimony, any supplemental motion papers requested by the trial court, and the parties' arguments at the new hearing. If it grants the motion, then it shall grant defendant a new trial as to the 1996 incident. If a new trial results in an acquittal or if the charges are dismissed, then the trial court shall render judgment on the convictions for the 1995 incident. If a new trial results in a conviction, then the trial court shall render judgment on the conviction or convictions and on the convictions for the 1995 incident. If the trial court denies the motion, then it shall reinstate the judgment (not published) (Premo, J.; We concur: Rushing, P.J., Elia, J.)
